Workers, state and development in Brazil
Powers of labour, chains of value
Ben Selwyn

Within the field of development studies, the importance of class relations is usually relegated to lesser status than the roles of states and markets in generating and allocating resources. This book argues that processes of class formation, struggle, and crucially, the changing balance of class forces between capital and labour constitute a key determinant of different patterns of capitalist development.

Workers, state and development in Brazil illuminates these key issues in political economy through a detailed empirical investigation of the nexus between class dynamics and developmental processes and outcomes in North East Brazil’s São Francisco valley. It details how workers in the valley’s export grape sector have utilized their structural and associational power to win concessions from employers, contributing to a progressive pattern of regional capitalist development.

Based on a stimulating engagement with and critique of World Systems Theory and the Global Commodity Chains approach, this book will be of wide-ranging interest to those interested in understanding how global dynamics impact on local development. It will appeal to students and researchers interested in processes of capitalist development, class formation and dynamics, North East Brazilian political economy and International Political Economy.

For details of how to order this book in the USA please visit www.palgrave-usa.com
For details of how to order this book in Australia please visit www.footprint.com.au

Contents
Introduction
1. Global commodity chains, labour history and capitalist development.
2. Emergence of export grape production in North East Brazil.
3. Grape workers: structural power and associational power.
5. Managing labour.
6. Class compromise.
7. Conclusions.
Bibliography

Ben Selwyn is Senior Lecturer in International Relations and Development Studies in the Department of International Relations, University of Sussex.

234x156mm 256pp
HB 978-0-7190-8531-4 £65.00
4 line illustrations, 1 map, 19 tables

Title
Workers, state and development in Brazil
Powers of labour, chains of value
Ben Selwyn

Isbn
978-0-7190-8531-4

Qty

Total

For UK orders, please add £3.00 for postage and packing for the first book, and £1.00 for each additional book, up to a maximum of £10.00. To obtain a quote for overseas shipping, please call NBNi on +44 (0) 1752 202301 or email cservs@nbninternational.com. All MUP books can be ordered online at: www.nbninternational.com

Please send me a pro-forma invoice

I enclose a cheque payable to NBN INTERNATIONAL for £...........

Please charge my Switch card (issue number...........)

Card No............................................................Expiry date......../........Security Strip No..........Signature...........................

Name...............................................................Address...............................................................................................
Tel/Fax..............................................................Email:................................................................................................

Postage
TOTAL

For details of how to order this book in the USA please visit www.palgrave-usa.com
For details of how to order this book in Australia please visit www.footprint.com.au

*Please note all prices are correct at time of going to press but are subject to alteration without notice.